About Me

I'm an interdisciplinary designer currently living in Seattle. I've always been creative, and since I was a kid, I've experimented with different ways of expressing that creativity. I love mixing media, using design and typography to communicate an idea or message. Design is everything I love brought together in one place. I never want to stop learning and finding new challenges; being a designer allows me to continuously learn new skills and processes for the rest of my life.
